Westerdale M.D. Annual Meeting

There was the largest attendance for years at the annual meeting of the Westerdale Municipality held at the Westerdale Community Hall last Saturday.

The interest in the doings of the council during the past year was keen and much discussion developed on the financial statement and other matters.

A resolution was passed asking that the council do not undertake any new work at the present time and that whatever work was done should be distributed among the farmers as much as possible.

The council were complimented on the work they had accomplished during the past year.

The nominations resulted in Mr. Geo. Clarke, Division 5 and Mr. C. L. Holmes, Division 6, being returned unopposed. Mr. W. E. Bates and Mr. A. T. Williams were nominated for Division 4. The election for that division will be held Saturday at the N. S. Ellithorpe place.

Enter Provincial Debating Contest.

The local Young People's Society has entered a debating contest conducted by the Young People's Societies in Alberta. The first debate will be held this Thursday evening at Knox Church, Didsbury, the subject being, "Resolved that hereditry has more influence than environment." The young people taking part are the Misses Holly Hunsberger and Margaret Geiger, and Messrs. Frank Moyle and Albert Meston. The winning team will debate against an Olds team.

Messrs. C. H. Ashdown, A. E. Ford and G. O'Sullivan attended the meetings of the Grand Lodge of Alberta, 1.0.0.F. last Thursday.

Edmonton Rink Wins In MacDonald Brier

Manahan's Edmonton rink proved to be too strong for Jack McCloy's Didsbury rink in the playoff for the honor of representing Alberta at Toronto for the MacDonald Brier Trophy. The games were played on the Glenora Club rink at Calgary on Monday.

In the morning Manahan got the best of McCloy in a well contested game by 11-5. In the afternoon, however, the Didsbury boys were decidedly off and Manahan won every end up to the tenth, when McCloy managed to place his last rock on the button. The score was 14-1.

The full games were broadcast over CFBN and the home folks were kept posted throughout the games.

In the evening both rinks were entertained at a banquet and all the players gave their greetings to the public over the radio.

Christianity 5,000 Years Old.

Dr. H. C. Liesemer said in his address on the Great Pyramid at the Brotherhood meeting at Zion Evangelical Church on Tuesday night that the teachings of Christianity really began 5,000 years ago. Most of the important dates of Biblical and secular history are to be found in the pyramid, such as the Flood, the Crossing of the Red Sea, the Birth and Crucifixion of Christ, and the World War. This leads us to believe that the men who built the pyramid were inspired of God, as were the men who wrote the Bible.

A vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Liesemer and the hope was expressed that he would deliver another lecture on the subject in the near future.

The next meeting of the Brotherhood will be held Tuesday evening March 21st.

Mr. Walter Scheidt was a Calgary visitor Thursday last.

Mountain View M.D. Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Mountain View municipal district held at the Olds School of Agriculture, was well attended.

Mr. Thos. Whitehair occupied the chair. The presentation of the financial statement provoked a great deal of discussion, the fees and mileage of the councillors coming in for considerable criticism, and a motion was carried recommending that the council fees be reduced, and also a motion that eight regular meetings be held instead of twelve.

The question of salaries came in for much discussion and the meeting voiced the opinion that salaries and pay for roadwork should be reduced 25 per cent.

It was moved and carried that the council consider financing the larger portion of the business on back taxes. The financial statement was then adopted and a vote of confidence in the councillors was passed.

Mr. F. S. Grisdale, M.L.A. spoke on general financial conditions and council legislation. He stated that a blanket moratorium would likely be passed by the legislature insofar as before a creditor can bring action, he must get permission from the court or a financial board to be established. He also said that the government would probably introduce the compulsory consolidation of tax arrears, whereby arrears of taxes would be spread over a period of six years, the taxpayers having to pay current taxes together with from 10 to 20 per cent of arrears each year.

Mr. Grisdale also pointed out that out of $15,000,000 required for the operation of the province this year, approximately 7 million dollars would be required for interest and principal on bonds. The condition of exchange on U.S. funds aggravated the position.

Nominations for councillors were called for, with the following results:

Div. 1. P. Saunders, unopposed.
Div. 2. W. D. Archer.
Div. 3. W. J. McCoy and Noah Swain.

The election for Division 3 will be held Saturday February 25th at the municipal office in Didsbury.

The annual meeting of Mountain View Co-operative Livestock Marketing Association will be held at the Elks' Hall, Olds this Friday.

Canadian Radio Programmes.

The recently appointed Canadian Radio Commission, within whose jurisdiction has been placed control of all radio broadcasting in Canada, has inaugurated the first of its series of all-Canadian programmes to be broadcast over a Dominion-wide hook-up of stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This first series is to consist of twelve symphony concerts given alternately by the Toronto and Montreal Symphony orchestras each Tuesday evening. The Radio Commission has also announced a second series of broadcasts for each Friday evening consisting of concerts by the bands of the Royal Canadian Regiment, London, Ontario, and the Canadian Grenadier Guards, Montreal.

Before taking the step of nationalizing radio broadcasting in Canada, the Canadian Government appointed a Royal Commission to study the whole subject and to investigate conditions and systems in other countries. In Great Britain all broadcasting is under the direction and control of the British Broadcasting Company, which, in a sense, acts for the Government. In the United States private companies and individual stations are responsible for the programmes, which are financed by advertising, while the Government controls the erection of stations, their power, wave lengths, etc. Canada's Radio Commission reported in favor of out-and-out control by the Government through the creation of a national Radio Commission with wide powers of control over all stations and all programmes, including the right to take over existing stations, erect new ones, and operate any or all of them.

Canada's position is a peculiar one. Being immediately adjacent to the United States with its 110,000,000 people, enormous financial resources, and many powerful stations with large revenues from advertising, as compared with Canada's population of only 10,000,000, much smaller financial resources, and a restricted volume of radio advertising available, and largely confined to purely local areas, our stations are consequently smaller and of less power compared with the high-powered stations across the line. As a natural and inevitable result, United States programmes largely monopolized the air in Canada. It was realized that this situation could only be overcome if at all, by the Government itself. Hence the decision in favor of a national radio commission with all-encompassing powers, and financed by the license fees paid by all citizens possessing receiving sets.

At the outset, the Radio Commission is not proceeding to acquire stations or erect new ones; rather it is devoting its attention to the development of worth-while Canadian programmes and providing the hook-up facilities whereby such programmes can be heard in every Province of the Dominion, an expensive proceeding because of our great extent of territory and our sparse population, and, therefore, beyond the capabilities of private enterprise.

There is little question but that the people of Canada desire that such all-Canadian programmes and national hook-ups should be provided. But to command the interest and support of our people such programmes must be equal to, and, where possible, excel, United States programmes. It is not only in the quality of the individual programmes that may be offered that they must successfully compete with United States programmes, but in their variety as well. The Radio Commission is making its start with symphony orchestra music. Well and good, and undoubtedly the two organizations selected to provide these programmes are just as fine as any United States organization. The fact remains that only a limited number of people possess an educated taste for symphonies. Possibly, everybody enjoys such a programme occasionally, but as a regular diet it is apt to pall. The same thing may be said with regard to truth in regard to band concerts, and, indeed, of any one class of programmes.

We desire to emphasize that we are not criticizing, in even the mildest manner, the initial programme decisions of the Radio Commission, but we do desire to point out, and to emphasize, that in order to command the approval and support of the masses of the Canadian people, who, after all, are paying for these programmes and, therefore, have the right to "call the tune," Canadian programmes must equal in their variety those which can be heard every evening by tuning in on U.S. stations. People like good music, whether by band, orchestra or vocal, but they also like a lot of fun. They enjoy a good joke, clever repartee, a real good laugh. At times they want to be excited and thrilled by an intense drama; they like to listen to an eloquent speaker upon timely topics. And there is grave danger that if the Canadian Radio Commission, in their laudable desire to raise the standard of radio programmes, adopt what we may term a "high brow" attitude, thousands of Canadian listeners will simply turn their dials and continue to listen in, as now, upon the enormously popular variety programmes emanating from United States stations.

It is to be hoped that the members of the Radio Commission are as fully alive to this situation as is the average radio listener. It will of course, take time to develop such programmes, while it is a comparatively easy matter to exclude arrangements such as listening societies and regimental bands to inaugurate initial programmes. But in order that public opinion may not develop an open antagonism to the policy of nationalized broadcasting, it is vitally important that no false impression of the policies and intentions of the Radio Commission be created.

No doubt that class of our population who are extremely fond of the highest form of music will write their commendations to the Commission. We would offer the suggestion that listening societies and regiments join the array of correspondents, and, while not criticizing what they themselves do not particularly enjoy, present their own views as to what they would like.

Debt Adjustment

Movement To Enact Law To Prevent Unjust Foreclosures

Representations will be made to the Saskatchewan Government, provincial-wide in scope, requesting that machinery be set up which will put the closure on unjust foreclosures after consideration has been given to all the merits in the case.

The governments will be asked to devise legislation which will protect all equities in property, no matter how great or small, as it is felt there is discrimination under the provisions of the proposed Debt Adjustment Act.

This discrimination, it is alleged, by the Saskatchewan Citizens' Investment Protective Association, is that inter-dependent groups in mortgages and sales agreements are not protected, and in a large number of cases hardships have been wrought through foreclosure being achieved by first mortgage holders.

The abuses of first mortgage foreclosure, where no consideration is given to the inter-dependent group in the property, is creating problems which have to be solved, and the solution of which can only be met by amendments to the present Debt Adjustment Act, it is contended by this Association.

Will Not Eliminate War

Disarmament Will Only Modify Method Of Fighting

We have to face the fact that disarmament will not eliminate war. It will only modify the method by which it can be carried on. It started with fists and then went on to bows and arrows and swords and spears, and, then some use discovered gunpowder, and so on. So we are, in reality, making for the bow and arrow age. It may be possible to arrive there some day, but how long shall we stay there; with all the resources of modern civilization behind us, civil aircraft, railways, motor transport and the endless possibilities of science?—National Review.

HEADACHE AFTER HEADACHE

Now She's Free From Them

A woman writes:—"I would like everyone who suffers from headaches to try Kruschen's. Before taking Kruschen's I was hardly ever free from a headache. But since I have been taking it regularly I have hardly had a headache, for which I am very thankful, for headaches can make one feel quite ill. I have been taking that small dose of Kruschen every morning in glass of water, before my breakfast, and I feel so well."—(Mrs.) A. E. D.

Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unexpended retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons, prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. That is just how Kruschen's Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen's Salts and Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter. Start on the "little daily dose" of Kruschen tomorrow. Then you will very soon have done with headaches.

Court Room Etiquette

Delinquents Must Wear Collar and Tie Before Swearing Judges

There was an amusing scene at a Swift Current de justice recently when a number of persons charged with various offences came up for trial. The first was acquitted but the justices fined him heavily because he was not wearing a collar. His lawyer stated that he had to send his client to get shaved before entering the court.

On hearing the fine announced a number of other delinquents rushed from the court to buy collars in neighboring shops. They all returned looking very relieved but unfortunately they had omitted to buy neckties. They were admonished by the justices, who said that in future any one appearing in court in this fashion would be severely dealt with.

Construction permits issued in Canada in recent months were 40 per cent above those of a comparative month of the previous year.

Close Doors On Technocracy

Columbia University Lays Plans For Survey By Its Own Engineers

Columbia University has closed its doors on Technocracy and laid plans for an energy and technology survey directed by its own engineers.

Four members of the Technocracy group, headed by Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch, of the Columbia industrial engineering department, announced they were "not in accord with some of the statements and attitudes" expressed by Howard Scott, the nominal leader, and therefore were "withdrawing from association with Technocracy."

"Technocracy seems to exist as far as we are concerned," Rautenstrauch declared.

"Scott will not work here any longer," he said, in reply to a question.

He also disclosed that the 190 or more unemployed engineers and architects, who have been working on Technocracy's "energy survey of North America," while being paid from unemployment relief committee funds, will work in the future on the Columbia survey and not on any work Scott and the "Technocrats" may carry on.

Looks After King's Stamps

Sir Edward Bacon Looks After Valuable Collection

Sir Edward Bacon, the new knight, who looks after the King's collection of stamps, has done so for many years. Like His Majesty, he is a stamp enthusiast. He has access to the stamp room at Buckingham Palace at all times, and the King spends many hours with him examining the collection, which is one of the most valuable in the world. Owing to the skilful manner in which the stamps have been purchased, the collection has cost the King comparatively little, although it comprises practically all the rare stamps of the world. Both the King and Sir Edward are experts with the microscope for stamp collecting purposes.

Japanese Statesman Sees Trouble

Criticizes Militaristic Spirit Dominant In His Country

A spokesman for one of Japan's principal political parties declared in the diet at Tokyo, Japan, that unless relations between Japan and the United States are improved they will produce renewed armaments competition and possibly a world war.

This statement was made by Hitoshi Ashida, formally chosen spokesman for the Seiyukai party, who delivered the boldest criticism of the current military domination of Japanese diplomacy heard in parliament since the Manchurian conflict began in September, 1931.

In response to Mr. Ashida's assertion that "a gloomy situation" rules relations between Japan and the United States, the foreign minister, Count Yosuya, declared that "there is no uneasiness concerning our relations with the United States."

Rising in the diet to question the government concerning its foreign policy, Mr. Ashida questioned the desirability of the army's domination of diplomacy and asserted that the public was afraid that "we are being dragged blindly into an uncharted pitch-black abyss."

Looks Like Magic

Stock Disappears and Bailiff's Sale Was Called Off

A. S. Cromarty, farmer in Essex County, Ontario, can give Thurston some lessons in magic, according to Frank Howard and Charlie Eggleston, division court bailiffs. Cromarty made two horses and two cows disappear and the court officer cannot find them.

There was a good crowd gathered for the auction which was held to satisfy a judgment against the farmer but the stock was missing so the sale was called off. Officers spent hours following hoof prints to various parts of the 12-acre farm and to adjoining property but had to give up because Cromarty would not tell where he hid the animals.

Uncanny Machines Known As Verifier And Tabulator Used To Check Up Census Returns

Aided by machines that count with lightning speed and which exist nowhere else in the world the computing of Canada's 1931 census involves much more than a counting of noses and it will be some time yet before the work begun when enumerators called from house to house nearly two years ago is completed.

The census of Canada now being tabulated is the biggest job of its kind ever undertaken in this country. Were it not for two machines, invented and built by census officials, it would cost three times as much as it will to tabulate the information which will be published alone. As it is, thanks to the almost uncanny mechanical devices, much more information will be compiled than it will be possible to publish.

The two machines are the verifier and the tabulator. The first detects errors and the second counts 240 different facts from individual cards at the rate of 245 cards a minute.

The data taken by the census enumerators is transferred to small cards by punching holes for each fact recorded. A hole is punched in the proper place to indicate the sex, age, religion, nationality, language, racial origin and other things of the person being counted.

This card is then sent to the verifying machine to check possible errors. The machine throws out cards on which conflicting pieces of information are recorded. For instance if a person's age is 25 and he is listed as a non-voter, under 21, the card is thrown into the discard and sent back for checking to correct the discrepancy.

If a man gives his racial origin as Jewish and his religion as Baptist the card is rejected. If the sex is omitted the card is shot back. The machine of course cannot detect a straight error in a single fact, such as the wrong age, the wrong sex, or the wrong nationality.

Each card runs under a set of pins, 240 in number, one for each possible hole. The pins drop through the holes into a small basin of mercury. This at once establishes an electric current, down through one pin across through the mercury and up through another. If any of 22 possible erroneous or doubtful combinations of facts are present the electric circuit is broken and the card is thrown out. The electric contact to the mercury bath lasts only 1/200 of a second.

The tabulator is the only machine in the world which will count 240 separate facts at the same time. It, too, works with electric currents running through a small basin of mercury. This at once establishes an electric current, down through one pin across through the mercury and up through another. If any of 22 possible erroneous or doubtful combinations of facts are present the electric circuit is broken and the card is thrown out. The electric contact to the mercury bath lasts only 1/200 of a second.

A large black board with 240 apertures under 240 headings in each of which is a revolving commutator with white figures like an automobile speedometer is attached to the machine. When all the cards for a certain district have run through and have counted the board has a record of the number of persons of each religion, each age division, each racial origin, and the whole 240 classifications marked up.

The next step is to take a photograph of the board which makes the permanent record. The totals from the photographic records are then computed on an adding machine and figures by provinces and for the whole of Canada are announced.

But the machine does more than merely count. As the cards run through they are sorted into boxes according to a classification sheet. They might first be sorted for age. Thus after the run would be completed for the city of Toronto the cards would be stacked according to age. Then they could be run through that order and the next result would give the number of persons of each sex, each religion, each nationality and so on in the city of Toronto under 24, between 21 and 25 and so on. All sorts of cross-classification of this kind are being made.

The Census Bureau has three tabulating machines built especially for this job at a cost of about $15,000 each. It takes three months to run the whole of Canada on 10,000,000 odd cards through the machines.

A. E. Thornton, mechanical superintendent for the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is the inventor of the machines and they were built in Ottawa under his direction and that of his assistant F. Bellisle. The two mechanics worked for three years on their plans. They had some little difficulty persuading the government to allow them to build the machines as commercial manufacturers scoffed and said they would never work. The machines have been working for 15 months without a hitch.

The next largest machine in the world is at Washington and is used by the United States census. It, however, tabulates only 60 facts at a time, compared with the 240 tabulated by the Canadian machine. The largest commercial machine in the world tabulates only 36 facts and cannot be bought. It can only be rented.

The Barter System

Premier Bennett Sees Trend In That Direction

Speaking before the Toronto Board of Trade, Premier R. B. Bennett said in the early days trade was conducted by barter and "there is evidence some would like to return to that method."

There were many phases of trade. The rural population, for the first time in the history of Canada, was smaller at present than the urban population. "We sometimes forget how vast a market we have in our own country for our products," he said. But despite Canada's magnificent resources, her export trade had shown a great diminution for a time. Eventually, however, through sacrifices, Canada had come back to fifth position as an exporting country.

There was no problem so great and so little understood as the railway problem which the prime minister said was one of the greatest and darkest clouds hanging over this country.

There was a tendency sometimes to blame the cost of the railway problem, but this was not right, since the three great agricultural provinces had guaranteed part of the transportation system.

There was also hundreds of millions of dollars invested in harbor and canal systems—all built to maintain Canada's trade and for its promotion.

Fish Propagation in B.C.

Province Will Stock Rivers and Lakes With Young Fish

Marking British Columbia's first attempt to stock its streams with young fish instead of mere fry whose mortality is too great for satisfactory propagation, Hyman Williams, provincial game commissioner, has announced plans for concentration of fish propagation at three centres.

Brown trout, rainbows and Scottish salmon will be reared in scientific feeding ponds located at Cowichan Lake, Qualicum on Vancouver Island and at Stanley Park, Vancouver. The young fish will then be released into the streams and lakes of the province for the sport of fishermen. Transportation will be made with the use of a new system of oxygen tanks which make it possible for long trips without danger.

Check and Double Check

Ontario Town Has Found This System Is Costly

It cost The Town Council of Chelmsford, Ont., $275.95, and then some to check and double check the books of town clerk H. J. Gratton and make the discovery the municipality owed that official three cents. And the corporation also has a lay-suit.

J. T. Deane, Sudbury, won his action against the town for $69 in his fee for moulting the books. The town refused to pay and called in a government auditor. Now they have a bill for $104.95 plus $19 expenses for the second auditor.

Making Pocket Money

Small Fox Catches Paying Farm Boys In Alberta

Farm boys are finding weasel trapping a profitable side line in the central Alberta district, ermine being very plentiful in these parts this winter.

Boys are able to catch half a dozen or so without much trouble, setting traps within a few hundred feet of their homes. Those who are going into it on a larger scale are reaping much richer returns. With eight traps, one boy caught 51 weasels in six weeks, and hopes to go well over the hundred mark before the winter is over. Another boy has a total of 30 skins to show for a month's work with traps and trick boxes.

The weasel skins are selling for 75 cents, top price, according to the young trappers, who expect to average around 60 cents a pelt for their entire catch.

Weasel seem to be the only game the trappers here are bothering with this season. Coyotes are somewhat scarce except in the more isolated parts. Skunk were plentiful during the summer, but few have been reported caught this winter.

One boy finds jackrabbit pelts worth going after. He set out a dozen snares in a large field a short distance from town and has caught 15 of the large bunnies. The family and neighbors have been dining frequently on rabbit meat and the boy reaps 15 to 25 cents a skin to keep him in pocket money. Bush rabbits are fairly plentiful.

An Expensive Exhibit

Elephant in Seattle Zoo Eats Ton Of Hay Weekly

Eating a ton of hay a week is the joy of Tusko, huge moonshine gazing elephant, who is now "at home" in special quarters at Woodland Park Zoo, Seattle, Washington. About 100,000 people have seen the big fellow since he was left to the care of the city by his alleged owners. He formerly held extended stands in Portland, Olympia, Chelan, Central and Tacoma, after he was "dismissed" from the big top when he became too expensive to cart around the country.

A Dangerous Job

Several snakes at the London Zoo are regarded spectators with a glassy stare. They let their eyes in accents of various kinds and the keepers admit them with glass eyes. The only trouble is that every time the snakes shed their skins the eyes pop out and have to be fitted back in again. Try that on a lion constrictor.

ANOTHER OF THE MAPLE LEAFS' STAMPAITS

Red Horner has been a tower of strength to the Toronto Maple Leafs Hockey team, and enjoys the reputation of being a hard checker. Here we see him leaving his imprint on Chicago ice as he slams the puck in the direction of the goalkeeper.

The bestowal of a knighthood upon Sir Edward Denny Baron, Keeper of the King's stamps, comes as a timely reminder that His Majesty is the proud possessor of what is beyond doubt the finest and most comprehensive collection of postage stamps of the British realm extant. Begun in his midshipman days under the tutelage of his uncle, the late Duke of Edinburgh, himself a keen and able philatelist, the collection has been developed and extended with the years until today it occupies upwards of 200 large albums in charge of a curator, who has a special room at Buckingham Palace in which to carry out the constant work of arranging, classifying and mounting the additions that are daily being made to it.

Only a few privileged members of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, of which the King is honorary patron, have been permitted to view the royal stamp collection in its entirety, but each year some portion of it is exhibited at the opening meeting of the society's new session. These annual displays usually reveal some original aspect of philatelic research. In days gone by, as Duke of York, and later as Prince of Wales, His Majesty used sometimes to attend the proceedings in person, and on more than one occasion gave evidence of his philatelic education by reading informative papers.

It is difficult to single out for particular mention any one portion of the King's collection, which covers more than adequately the whole gamut of the imperial stamp issues from Antiqua to Zanzibar, for, although it is planned on more or less general lines, it is highly specialized as regards a large number of colonies and protectorates.

From the point of value alone the Mauritius section ranks possibly first with its pair of "Post Office" rarities (1d. and 2d.), the unused copy of the twopenny value being the finest known example of this classic stamp. Great Britain is probably the most complete, including as it does as many unique items in the way of original drawings, proofs and essays, which cannot possibly be duplicated.

For the beautiful and fascinating variety stamps of the British West Indies the King has ever displayed a liking, dating back to the days when he first acquired these stamps in H.M.S. Thrush, and his collection of these issues is especially strong, lacking only the unique 1 cent British Guiana of 1856. It is on record that the owner of the world's rarest stamp once sought permission to present it to the royal collection, an offer that was firmly but courteously declined since His Majesty does not accept gifts from private collectors, albeit his philatelic treasures have been enriched from time to time by presentations of stamps made by colonial governments and native princes in the form of souvenirs of some of the royal tours.

The postal emissions of Hongkong, India, Straits Settlements, Victoria and Tonga (Friendly Islands) are but a few of the more advanced portions of the King's collection which have been shown in public, while there is in addition a practically complete range of the scarce and historic "occupation" issues made under British military authority during the Great War, as well as an equally representative array of air post stamps of the empire, including the most up-to-date phases of philately.

From the first His Majesty's interest in the pursuit has been a real and active one. In a letter to a correspondent written many years ago he wrote of stamp collecting: "It is one of the greatest pleasures of my life." Philatelists will find in the honor conferred upon the curator of the King's stamps a further indication of the keen and abiding interest that he still evinces in that branch of connoisseurship which under his august patronage has come to be known as the "Royal hobby."

Gold Standard In Relation To Commodity Prices

It is a fact that gold has proved to be a failure as a money standard and is also a failure as a money basis for the Canadian Government to act on the gold standard and through the Government to control the Dominion with a view to stabilizing the purchasing power of money and the prices
of the commodities of the world.

power of money and the prices
of the commodities of the world.

Gold, as a commodity, is the same as any other commodity, and since it is the same as any other commodity it is subject to the same laws of supply and demand. It is a fact that the gold standard is a failure as a money standard and is also a failure as a

ment to act on the gold standard

There are 15,000,000 people out of work in the U.S.A., 700,000 unemployed in Canada, also millions in England. 20,000,000 unemployed in the continent of Europe. As is generally reckoned, 5 dependents on each laborer reaches the enormous number of 100,000,000 dependent on government support and charity. Ninety per cent of the world's population must give away its products to obtain a pinch of gold, not enough to pay the cost of production.

The Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill on June 26th 1932, speaking of gold said, "Gold is the cause which has stifled the traffic of our railroads; put out blow-furnaces; quenched enterprise; sabotaged every form of human effort, and depreciated every service we can render one another." Going off the Gold Standard saved England from utter collapse, a recognized fact by all the great statesmen overseas. The Conservative party of England in the closing session of its annual conference, October 8th 1932, passed the following resolution, "We deprecate any attempt to return to the Gold Standard and urge the Government to consult with the Dominions with a view to stabilizing the purchasing power of money within the Empire on the basis of the index scale of wholesale commodity prices."

Nearly all the countries of the world are now off the Gold Standard, France, Canada and the U.S.A. still remaining on. I believe that the U.S.A. is in the worst position of any country in the world. Ninety per cent of her farmers are in total bankruptcy; her industries closed down; her trade ruined and her people on the point of revolution—with her vaults full of gold. The Gold Standard a farce and a sham!
In Canada it is bringing the people to financial ruin, wholesale confiscation of property and repudiation of debts. The farming population is now at the end of its ability to carry on, is now beyond the possibility of recovery. Conditions now existing here in Canada are furnishing fertile ground for the atheistic communists from Russia to work upon. This system that is bringing financial ruin may be remedied or ere long we shall find ourselves in the grip of the damnable institution that is enslaving the people of Russia.

How Canada Spends

A study showing the comparison between the cost of Government in Canada and the farm value of all field crops has been prepared by W. Sanford Eaton, Secretary for the National Committee on economy in public finance by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The study, as indicated by the chart, indicates that in 1932 the total sum expended by governments for ordinary purposes was equal to 95 per cent of the farm value of all field crops in Canada. In 1913 governments expended a sum equal to 26 per cent of the value of all field crops.

Lutheran Conference
A Huge Success

Forty-four young people from out of town attended the eighth annual Lutheran League Conference of the Lutheran Church. There were 38 from Calgary, 7 from Trochu and 4 from Beiseker.

Saturday morning the first session was opened. After an address of welcome by Mr. A. Kuring, the Rev. V. L. Meyer began the Bible Study on "Prayer," followed by addresses from Mr. J. J. Zubick and Rev. W. Raedeke. The morning session closed with an address from the local minister.

The second session was held in St. Paul's Church at Westcott, the topic being, "Ye Shall Be My Witnesses," by the Rev. W. Raedeke, followed by a Mission Study from the same speaker. An inspirational address was given by Student Theo. Folkmann, followed with another mission study by Rev. V. L. Meyer.

Saturday evening a fellowship social was held in the basement of the Didsbury Public School, about eighty young people being present. Games were played and several dialogues, recitations and musical selections were presented by the local society, after which refreshments were served. A most enjoyable evening was had by all.

Sunday afternoon the sessions continued with an interesting topic study led by Rev. V. L. Meyer, on "The Life of Gustavus Adolphus, Greatest of the Lutheran Laymen," whose death occurred just 300 years ago.

Sunday evening a consecrational farewell service was held in the St. John's Lutheran Church, Didsbury. Rev. W. A. Raedeke delivering the address.

We acknowledge with grateful appreciation the help of the following:

The Didsbury School Board for use of the Public School basement; Atlas Lumber Co. for use of lumber; Mrs. Sharp for use of chairs; The Westcott Literary Club for use of stage curtains; Mrs. Klayhold for use of furniture. All the many friends who gave their willing service to help make the conference a huge success.

High School Hockey.

Didsbury High and Olds High battled through three periods of fast hockey last Friday night to tie 2-2. Olds had the edge for the first 20 minutes and Hanson and Branscombe succeeded in bulging the twin for the visitors. Didsbury played real hockey in the second frame and Fred Evans in one of his famous rushes scored for the homesters. The third canto was a hard fought battle all the way. Dennis Jenkins broke through in the first few minutes to tie the score with a hard shot from just inside the blue line. There was no further score.

Mike Holub, the home goalie was outstanding and saved many almost certain goals.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

Alan swung to wield this sword in his hand.

By mid-afternoon of that interminable day they came to the first straggling trees at the Thal-Azzah edge. At deep twilight they reached the Alaska Forks and the anchored launch.

Pedunculat had just returned from his useless trip up the south branch. In a few words he understood all that had happened. With one glance at his spent and staggering partners, he took their heavy burden from their shoulders.

Alan flung himself down beside Bill, driven to the limit of human endurance. His last waking thought was the grim satisfaction of knowing that he held a sword over his guilty arrogant officer and could bring him to account at last.

In his cabin inspector Haskell sat behind his desk, waiting for Alan Baker to come in and report. He was thinking, thinking hard; and for all his self-control his nerves were jumpy.

Over in a corner Whipple sat at the table, pretending to write, but in reality waiting there, as Haskell had bidden him. Something cold had gripped Haskell half an hour ago when he saw the patrol returning without the six bandits and with Constable Younge desperately wounded. He knew the details of that mess already. Whipple had come up and privately told him. How the bandits had headed for the Thal-Azzah, as Baker had warned. How Baker had run those six to earth and cornered them. How Pedunculat and the other two constables had been a hundred and forty miles away during that crucial hour.

As he knew, this crime was the most spectacular in years along the Three Rivers. The defeat administered to the police was the most stinging in a decade. This incident would have reverberations at headquarters. Superintendent Williamson would investigate. The very first question of that veteran old officer would be:

"Why in h—l did you order Baker to divide that patrol? Splitting up his detail that way—didn't you realize that another party would be able to handle these criminals?"

Not defending himself, Haskell knew he was caught. He knew he had made a capital mistake in a Force where a man at first mistake is usually his last. In these thirty minutes all his prospects of promotion in service, or smoothing Alan Baker, of swinging Elizabeth Spaulding to himself, had come tumbling down like a house of cards, and he was thoroughly frightened.

It would spell ruin to his career if the facts of the patrol became known. The blame of this shameful defeat lay squarely at his door. Baker surely realized that; Baker surely was going to use that sword against him. It was war now, open and avowed war between them.

Step by step, logic led him to the one and only recourse he had. If Williamson ever found out he had ordered that patrol split, he was sunk. Therefore Williamson must not find out. There was a way to keep him from knowing the facts.

Haskell tried to still his conscience by thinking that Baker had wanted the patrol to fail. If that was so, then this measure was exactly what the sergeant had coming to him. He ought to be smashed, and smashed hard. . . . You've got to fight fire with fire. . . .

Still in his muddled and torn uniform, Alan came down the slope toward Haskell's cabin, intending to bludgeon some hard and fast terms out of the guilty inspector or short complaint over his head to Superintendent Williamson. If Haskell did not give in to his demands, he meant to send a half-brave runner to the Royal Signal corps station at Resolution and flash a message to the division commander that would start an avalanche.

Over at Mrs. Drummond's house where Joyce had gone, candles were gleaming in the windows. Across at Father Claverly's tiny hospital, Larry Younge lay fighting for his life. Up the slope at barracks Dave MacMillan was locked in the police "butterfly" charged with being accomplices to robbery and murder.

Joyce had reported secretly: "Alan, I talked with him. He isn't guilty! He never had heard a whisper about these bandits, till I told him. He couldn't have deceived me."

That same impression had been Alan's. "He couldn't have deceived me." There was something behind that pack of furs which hadn't come to light yet and which would explain those damning circumstances.

It was his conviction that Dave MacMillan was not guilty at all.

He meant to put up a fight for Dave. It was easy to resolve that, but the actual job was the hardest thing he had attempted in his whole life. The only way under heaven of clearing Dave was to capture the guilty men and either bring a confession out of them or hold out king's evidence. He was sure and got them started talking against each other.

Which way would they try to escape? They'd go east when they left the Thal-Azzah. They'd go across the Great Barrens to Hudson's Bay and try to pick up passage on a fishing smack, or go east and south toward The Fox in Manitoba. There was only one route leading east out of the Thal-Azzah, and they'd have to take it. It was an old Tinnex trade route, the Inconnu River.

Alan meant to lead a patrol to the Inconnu.

As he strode into the cabin, he saw Haskell waiting for him, coolly smoking a cigarette. It seemed to Alan that the man actually did not realize that his ignorant orders had wrecked the patrol and that the whole blame and shame of it lay at his door.

When he finished his report, Haskell made no comment. Wondering at his cool air, Alan was silent a few moments. He could not understand the man's nonchalance. This was war between them; each knew it; and yet Haskell showed no fear, no concern, no conciliatory spirit whatsoever.

Keeping back his heavy weapon, Alan took up his defense of Joyce's father:

"About Dave MacMillan. My opinion is, he's entirely innocent. There's no call to send him outside to Edmonton. A travelling clerk is coming down the Three Rivers in August, and his case can wait for that. He can be kept here, or released on bail. Drummond will put up bail; I'll be personally responsible for him. There's another reason; he's got some good friends among the Dogrib. If he's released he'll get busy and stir them up to help hunt these bandits."

Haskell interposed. "What was he doing last week? Where was he? Can he put up any alibi?"

He was in the Canile-Isle Lake country, trying to locate Little Otter's band. He'd fed them all winter, and they owed him their spring peltry; but they'd sneaked away and taken their peltry in to the L. & H. He saw no one; he has no alibi.

"That trader won't be released," Haskell said dully. "I'll decide whether to keep him here or send him outside to Edmonton."

Dismissing Dave MacMillan's plight with a curt gesture, he demanded: "What name do you leave Constable Burgoon there at the trading post, short-handed as we are?"

"To watch after the furs and trade goods."

"That's MacMillan's lookout. I'll have to instruct Pedunculat to get Burgoon tomorrow."

"But Miss Joyce expects to return there. She has good reasons. What protection do you intend to give her?"

"If she insists on returning, I don't feel any responsibility. This isn't an orphanage; it's a Mounted Police post."

Alan entered that remark in his account against the inspector. Haskell's callous attitude toward a defenseless, grief-stricken girl seemed to him an index to the man's real manhood.

Still keeping his sword hidden from Haskell, he broached the matter of that patrol to the Inconnu. As he sketched his plan briefly, he saw that Haskell, listening to him coldly, was not even interested. A uneasiness came over him. What was Haskell thinking? Didn't the man realize he had made a fatal mistake?

Alan summed up his plan: "An three weeks I want to have a patrol lying low on the Inconnu. I'll take Harlock and Pedunculat, and enlist three good 'breds as special constables."

Haskell stopped him. "I'm not interested in your plan, sergeant. You're merely making a long guess about what they'd do. It sounds thin."

"About as thin as my guess that they'd take the north branch into the Thal-Azzah!" Alan flung back at him. "I know this country. Now, get this straight inspector: I'm going to make that trip. I didn't come in here to ask your permission. You've wrecked one patrol. If Superintendent Williamson hears about that, you won't have a chance to wreck any more. You'll keep your hands off this Inconnu trip, or Williamson is going to hear of it—quick!"

The threat daunted Haskell not at all. He scarcely seemed to have heard. With that faint sardonic smile on his face, he intoned coldly:

"Besides the flimsiness of your plan, sergeant, there's another absurdity about it. You just came back from a patrol that started out with every chance in the world of succeeding. You yourself admit you met the bandits and even had them cornered. But by your weak vacillating fight you allowed them to escape."

"What's that?" Alan cut in. "A weak vacillating fight? . . . Good Lord!" His memory whipped back to Bill and himself belying up behind the muskrat house, and to Larry Younge, coming out against six men on open water.

"You failed ditheringly," Haskell proceeded, in knife-edge voice. "You probably wanted to fail, so you could try to hang something onto me. Those criminals escaped clean, and one of your men was badly shot. After such a performance, don't you think it's a bit ridiculous of you to stand there and boldly ask me to let you lead a thousand-mile, all-summer patrol with five men? Instead . . . Well, you've been in the Mounted long enough to know what the consequences are of a failure like yours."

Alan stood dazed. Haskell was actually blaming that disaster upon him! Did the man still fail to realize that the patrol had been wrecked by his own crazy orders?

We cannot know them all. These ancestors of ours Who left us, through the long, slow years Such strangely varied powers. One gave me wistful dreams And love of wind-tossed foam. Another gave a heart that clings To tranquil ways and home. One gave me truth and trust. One gave me pride and fire. The gift of one was faith enough To grasp my heart's desire. Women with laughing lips And men who fought and dreamed: So through my veins the changeable tide Of diverse lives has streamed. And sometimes I must ask, As life so strangely runs, How much of this myself is I. How much those other ones?

New Bow For Violin
German Fiddler Finds Silver Wires Give Good Tune
For centuries past the violin bow has been made of horsehair. It is perhaps a lucky thing that, just as the horse is disappearing, a German fiddler has invented a bow string with silver wires. These wires are of about the same thickness as horsehair, and as they are tightly roughened on the surface they vibrate the strings perfectly without the use of resin. The tune, it is claimed, is far better than is given by the ordinary bow. It is not commercially available on this continent as yet.

About $400,000 worth of gold is produced each year.

Mountain View Notes

Miss Snyder spent the week-end at her home.

During the recent cold spell many adults hated to venture outdoors and many were amazed at the pluck exhibited by school pupils. Some when told by parents that they had better stay at home, nearly broke their hearts.

The Mountain View W.I. met at the home of Mrs. W. Atkinson on Thursday last. A splendid paper on "Beauty Culture" was given by Mrs. Win. Goulet and was greatly enjoyed. After the business session refreshments were served by Mrs.
Mosley and her sister. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Stuart Tighe.

RUGBY NOTES

Owing to stormy weather the W.I.
meeting was not held till Friday February 17th, when it took place at the home of Mrs. Otto Krebs.
Twenty members and visitors were present. After the usual business was transacted, "Current Events" were given by Mrs. R. Irwin. Mrs.
Clarke gave a splendid talk on "The Land of Evangeline," illustrating it with numerous views of places of interest there. Mrs. McFarlane favoured the meeting with a vocal solo, and a humorous reading was given by the secretary. Best thanks are due to the three ladies who so kindly judged the articles in the flour-sack contest. The prizes were awarded to Mrs. O. Krebs, Mrs.
Clarke and Mrs. A. Krebs. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Wald, when it is expected that Mrs. Malton, from the O.S.A., will speak on "Poultry Problems."

Radio Good, Voice Better

The radio is good, but it cannot compare to the human voice in its original purity and with the charm and suggestion of the living singer.
You will appreciate this if you hear Norma Piper in her song recital at the Opera House tomorrow evening, February 24th, under the auspices of the Masons of Didsbury.

Miss Piper will be assisted by Richard Seaborn, violinist and G.
Lloyd Roberts, accompanist.
